The Bad Boy.

Peck's Son.

"What's the trouble now between you and your pa?" asked the groceryman of the bad boy, as he came down the alley on a jump, after climbing over the back fence at his home in a hurry, attired only in pants and shirt and a coat of perspiration. "There's your pa looking over the fence now, and shaking a piece of barrel stave this way. What have you been up to?" "O, just been doing what pa told me to," said the boy, as he picked up the cover of a rulin box and began to fan himself. "You see, pa is one of these funny fellows. In a cold day in winter he will come to the table and ask me where his linen coat is, and why she don't put up the mosquito-bars. He thinks it is smart. This morning it was hot enough to roast eggs on the sidewalk, and pa came down to breakfast and asked where his sealskin cap and gloves were, and then he turned to me and said, 'Hennery why haven't you built a fire in the furnace? Want us all to freeze to death? If you can't keep a fire in the furnace I will know the reason why,' and then he laughed, and wiped the perspiration off his face. I thought it would be a good joke to take pa at his word, and show him that two could be cunning as well as one, so I went down in the basement and built a fire. In the furnace, with kindling wood, and put on a lot of coal. After breakfast pa sat down in the parlor to read the paper, and he began to get a hot box. It was warm enough without any fire, about ninety in the shade, and pa began to heat up. I went through the parlor and I said I guessed it was going to be a scorcher, and a man would get sunstruck if he went out doors. Pa is afraid of being sunstruck, so he wouldn't go out. He sat there trying to read, and pulled off his coat and vest and collar and cuffs, and boots and tried to find a cool place. He went up stairs, but it was hotter there, and he came down, pulling. The minister and two deacons called to talk with pa about the picnic they are going to have next week and they said it was the hottest day ever was. Pa said if hell was any hotter than Milwaukee it had no charms for him and the minister said this weather was a refrigerator car in comparison with what pa would encounter hereafter, if he didn't change his course. Pa was mad at the minister for being so personal, but he went on talking about the picnic. The minister looked at the thermometer and it was a hundred and six, and he said he didn't go out of that house till after sundown, not if he knew it. Pa suggested that the minister and the deacons take off their coats and things, and so they stripped off their things and sat around and lolled. The minister said as pa was the committee for lemonade for the picnic he better make some then so they could see if he knew his business, and pa sent me to the kitchen to make some. There was only one lemon, so I asked the girl for some lemon extract, and she gave me a bottle of citrate of magnesia, which she said was so near like lemonade they couldn't tell the difference and I poured a quart of that in the lemonade pitcher, and sweetened it and took it in the parlor. Well, you'd a dale to see them drink it and perspire. They talked picnic and looked at the thermometer, and spoke disrespectfully of the weather, and I sat around and watched them from on top of the box about an hour, when suddenly they didn't drink any more lemonade cause it was all gone. Pa went in the kitchen and I saw him examining the bottle that I got the lemon extract out of, and he picked up a piece of barrel stave and went back in the parlor, and just then the minister, who had sat his chair, over the register, to get the draft of cold air, told pa there was hot air coming up the register, and pa and the deacons examined all the registers, and found that the air was hot, and then they looked at each other, and pa came to the door and spoke kindly, and said, 'Hennery, come in here, your pa wants to speak to you about something,' but I knew he was holding that barrel stave behind him to hide it and I didn't come here. Hennery, not very much. I think a boy can't 'most always tell when it is healthy not to come here. Hennery? Just as the minister looked at the thermometer and said it was a hundred and twenty, and ma came in the front door from her marketing, and shouted fire, I went out the back way and got over the fence a little ahead of the barrel stave, which struck the fence right under me. I ain't no coward, but I am like the fellow that run away from the fight and said, as soon as the chairs and bungsters began to fly through the air, he decided to get out honorably, and the only way to get out honorably was to get out quick. Pa will get over being mad at twelve-thirty, and I will go home to dinner. I guess the picnic meeting has adjourned, as the minister and the deacons are coming up the sidewalk with their coats on their arms. Pa is one of these fellows that likes a joke if it is on someone else. The other day a friend was at our house, and pa wanted to play a joke on him, so he said he would get him around back of the house, and get him into the hammock, and as soon as he was in he wanted me to reach around the corner of the house and cut the hammock rope on the tree and let him down. When I thought it was about time for pa to get the man in the hammock I cut the rope and came out to help pa laugh at the fellow. I laughed, but I was surprised to find that the fellow was sitting on a bench, and pa had gone down with the hammock, and he was making up the awfullest face ever was. His pants were split from Dan to Beersheba, and he made a dent in the ground as big as a six quart milk pan. The fellow laughed, but pa was mad, and said I didn't have no sense. He wanted to know why I didn't look what I was doing, and when I told him I did, he was mad again, and said I didn't have no veneration. If my ticket didn't draw any veneration, how was I to blame? I did just as pa told me to. How was I to know it was pa in the hammock instead of the other fellow. It is mighty hard to do everything right, ain't it? Don't you think our folks are in luck that I do so few things wrong?"

The groceryman said he thought they were in luck that they were alive, and as the bad boy went out the back door his pa came in the front door and asked the price of lettuce, and looked all around the store as though he had lost something about the size of the bad boy.

Business Laws in Daily Use.

The following compilation of business law contains the essence of a large amount of legal verbiage:

If a note is lost or stolen, it does not release the maker; he must pay it if the consideration for which it was given and the amount can be proven.

Notes bear interest only when so stated.

Each individual in a partnership is responsible for the whole amount of the debts of the firm, except in cases of special partnership.

Ignorance of the law excuses no one.

The law compels no one to do impossibilities.

An agreement without consideration is void.

A note made on Sunday is void.

Contracts made on Sunday cannot be enforced.

A note made by a minor is void.

A contract made with a minor is void.

A contract made with a lunatic is void.

A note obtained by fraud, or from a person in a state of intoxication, cannot be collected.

It is a fraud to conceal a fraud.

Signatures made with a pencil are good in law.

A receipt for money is not always conclusive.

The acts of one partner bind all the rest.

"Value received" is usually written in a note, and should be, but it is not necessary. If not written it is presumed by law, or may be supplied by proof.

The market of an "accommodation" bill or note, (one for which he has received no consideration having lent his name or credit for the accommodation of the holder) is bound to all other parties, precisely as if there was a good consideration.

No consideration is sufficient in law if it be illegal in its nature.

Checks or drafts should be presented during business hours, but in this country, except in the case of banks, the time extends through the day and evening.

If the drawer of a check or draft has changed his residence, the holder must use due or reasonable diligence to find him.

Our New Minister to Germany

The Hon. JOHN A. KASSON OF IOWA.

Hon. John A. Kasson, who was lately appointed as Minister to Germany, was born at Burlington, Vt., January 11th, 1822. He acquired the rudiments of his education in the public schools of his neighborhood, and when twenty years of age graduated from the University of Vermont. Upon leaving this institution he determined to study law, and pursued a course of reading in Massachusetts; and after being admitted to practice he removed to St. Louis, where he engaged in his profession until 1857, when he settled in Des Moines, Iowa. In the following year he was elected State Director in the organization of the State Bank of Iowa, and in the next was State Commissioner to investigate and report on the condition of the Executive Department of Iowa. About this time he was elected Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and in 1860 he was both a Delegate to the Chicago Convention and the Representative of Iowa on the Platform Committee. Upon the inauguration of President Lincoln, Mr. Kasson was appointed First Assistant Postmaster-General, a position he occupied until the fall of 1862, when he resigned to accept a nomination for Congress, but in the ensuing election was defeated. In 1863 he was appointed United States Commissioner to the International Postal Congress, held in Paris. On his return he was elected a member of the Thirty-eighth Congress, and at the close of that was chosen for the Thirty-ninth. In 1867 he visited Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Switzerland and Italy, as Commissioner on the part of the United States to negotiate postal connections, and succeeded in inducing all the Governments excepting that of France to sign the preliminary agreements. From 1868 to 1873 he served as member of the General Assembly of Iowa, and was elected to the Forty-third and Forty-fourth Congresses.

Soon after his accession, President Hayes appointed Mr. Kasson United States Minister to Spain, but on account of the stand he had publicly taken in Congress upon the subject of Spanish atrocities in Cuba, he declined the portfolio, and was then given that of the Austrian mission. Upon his retirement from service in Vienna, he returned home and was elected to the Forty-seventh Congress from his old district. He has ranked as one of the Republican leaders of the House, and his retirement from that body will be greatly regretted.

MESSAGES OF LOVE OR HATE.

The Language of Postage Stamps, as Described by a Master of the Science.

(Philadelphia Times.)

"Do I know anything about the language of postage stamps?" said a well-known stationery dealer yesterday. "I don't know of any book on the subject, if that is what you mean, but I have heard the significations of some of the different ways of placing them on the envelopes. For instance, if the writer is a gentleman who wishes to express love for a fair damsel, he inclines the label toward the left, which method is repeated by the lady if she is favorable to his suit. If on the contrary, she wishes to give him the cold shoulder, she inclines her label to the right. A stamp in a perpendicular position signifies simple admiration; when the bust stands on its head it means that the only sentiment evoked by the suppliant is ridicule. If the stamp lies on its face it implies that the writer is dying for love; if it is lying on its back, then the writer has got over the attack of heart disease. A label may be placed wrong way up with an inclination to the left that tells a story of hopeless attachment, while should it be leaning towards the right-hand corner, it is a sign that the affection is unrequited. 'Are there any other signs?'"

"Yes, such as sticking the label in odd places on the envelope, in wrong corners, using two or even three stamps, making kisses around them, near them or in proximity to them. These have various meanings, and may all be included in the language of postage stamps."

Did you ever know of any one using this code of communication?" "If you promise not to give me away I will tell you of a postage stamp correspondence in which I myself once was a principal participant."

"My honor as a gentleman."

"That's good enough. Well, it's about ten years ago now. I hope you won't be shocked to hear that this correspondence grew out of my being a regular attendant at church."

"Not at all. That makes it all the more interesting."

"I suppose it does, so many similar correspondences have arisen from a like cause. I have for years been a member of St. Peter's Episcopal church, at Third and Pine streets. One Sunday, ten years ago, I was desperately struck with the appearance of a young lady who sat in the pew on the opposite side of the aisle to me. Never mind about details—after some inquiries I found out who she was, but could not obtain an introduction."

"What did you do?"

"I got from a friend of mine some information about the postage-stamp language and the language of flowers. Every Sunday morning I managed to get to church in time to place a small bouquet of flowers in her pew, together with an empty envelope with a stamp affixed in a certain way. After a while she discovered who her unknown admirer was. What is more, she also learned the stamp language, and in return she would leave an envelope stamped in the pew for me. This silent courtship proceeded for nearly eight months, when one lucky day I found an acquaintance who knew her family. I need not tell you that I very soon became acquainted too. To make a long story short, the lady is now my wife."

"Indeed! That is certainly a happy and fitting ending to so romantic a courtship."

GALLAGHER'S RANCH, TEXAS

Mr. Editor.

I wish that you could see and enjoy the beautiful scenery of South-west Texas. As stated in my last, the country is very hilly and broken, and in all broken lands we find beautiful scenery pure water, etc., yet, especially so here. I am now sitting by a little stream of water that oozes out of a mountain and runs leisurely along but a few yards till it reaches its mother stream, which has its source several miles distant. Now since I have named the little stream, I will give you a full description of the surrounding country.

Two miles from where I am writing a small spring rises and directs its course between two hills; a few yards adds another, and so this is continued every few yards and here it is a large stream, but added to the beauty of this is the dotted row of hills on either side.

These mountains are covered with a shrub called live oak, as it is green through the winter; some are entirely bare and you can plainly see Mexican freight wagons four miles distant; which makes a beautiful picture for the man who said "Distance lends enchantment to the view."

But my choice of the various pictures of nature is to climb to the summit of a high and bare mountain near sunset when the rays of the sun are changed to a golden color and watch them wave to and fro like-fence from one hill to another till the great ball of burning light loses its balance of gravity and goes tumbling down "at an" hill.

Everything is different here, and seemingly peculiar as your ear is likewise catching something new, sometimes filled with the beautiful accented Spanish language or the unaccented Chinese—a people who beggar description—a people whose habits and traits are entirely different from everybody; so if other particulars are wanted call on John, the Chinaman as his actions will speak louder than any words. The Spanish are more like people in their habits, and are often undervalued, as the Mexicans are often called Spaniards. The Mexicans are only a half-breed of Indians and Spaniards.

By the way, Mr. Editor, did you ever have a rattle-snake to rise up and rattle his bells in your ear or a bear to grin at you? If so, you can sympathize with one who walks out alone to meditate about home and all of its absorbing endearments, when suddenly your ears are full of rattlings from his alarm bells, your eyes lose the path, indeed your whole self is non-plussed till fifteen minutes have passed, when you find your senses can outrun you, and you fall fainting to the ground. The present of the verb "shake" doesn't express your idea or the past tense shock, now does the participle shaken unless you add shaking; I will give it up by saying shocked. There are but few bear near here, and last I convey to your readers a wrong idea as Goldsmith in his description of America:

"Those blazing stars that dart a downward ray, And fiercely shed intolerable day; Those matted woods where birds forget to sing But silent late in drowsy slumbers cling; Those poisonous floods with rank luxuriance crowned, Where the dark scorpion garters death around; Where at each step the stranger fears to wake The rattling terrors of the venomous snake; Where, crowding tigers wait their hopeless prey, And savage men more murderous still than they etc."

But rather the description of his own country: "The cooling brook the grassy vestied green, The breezy covert of the warbling grove, That only shelters thefts of harmless love."

Hon. J. E. Hallsell has been re-nominated for Congress in the Third District.

Will the Prohibitionists promulgate a new gospel according to St. John?

The Ohio river is lower than it has been at a corresponding date for ten years.

Fourteen daily newspapers in New York city advocate the election of Cleveland and Hendricks.

There are seventeen German papers in Ohio and all of them are against Blaine and Logan.

Hon. W. H. Barnum, of Connecticut, has been re-elected Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

It is persistently asserted in Catholic circles that there is great likelihood of Mary Anderson's joining the Carmelite nuns.

It is said that the Montana Indians are in a starving condition and are forced to subsist by eating their dogs and ponies.

Cleveland and Hendricks, Blaine and Logan, Butler and West, St. John and Daniel—you pay your money and you take your choice.

We suppose there are, or will be, candidates for Congress in this district, but not a paper in the district contains an authorized announcement of any of the aspirants.

The Capital the new paper to be published by Dr. Jno. D. Woods and Hon. Geo. V. Triplett, will appear at Frankfort next week.

Gov. Cleveland will be officially notified of his nomination to-day and his letter of acceptance will appear in a few days.

Hon. Allen G. Thurman declines to be a Democratic candidate for Congress in the Columbus Ohio, district. Mr. Converse, the present incumbent, also declines to stand for re-election.

Cyrus W. Field, the millionaire, gave a lunch to 200 invited guests on the roof of a new building in New York city. It was a noisy affair and the whole party had a "high old time."

Horn music was one of the accompaniments in the Prohibition Convention. Is it not a little inconsistent for them to take a "horn" in their National convention?

Ernest Wilcox, editor of the Indiana Post, was cowhided at Evansville Saturday by a grocer named Casper Mohr. Mohr claimed that Wilcox spoke disrespectfully of his deceased brother.

The President has appointed Jno. E. Bryan U. S. Marshal for the District of Georgia in place of Gen. Longstreet removed. Poor Longstreet! He sold himself to the Republicans for an office and now he has been kicked out of that.

Mr. C. P. Huntington, the great railroad magnate, was married a few days ago to Mrs. Worsham a wealthy New York widow, and they have gone to Europe on a bridal tour. Mr. Huntington's first wife has been dead only eight months. The groom is 63 years old and the bride is a fascinating blonde some twenty years his junior. The ceremony was pronounced by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher.

The Republicans have commenced the publication of a campaign paper in this city which is called the "Semi-weekly Independent Democrat." It is a small five-column, four-page sheet, and the Republican who writes the matter in contents is so ashamed of his offspring that he will not allow his name to appear at the head of the paper. The chief aim of the paper seems to be to keep the public from knowing who edits it; secondarily, its object is to secure the election of that staunchest of Republicans, George W. Jolly, to the county judgeship. There is no doubt that Mr. Jolly inspires all the laudatory articles about himself. Indeed, it may well be surmised that he is the chief editor. There is nothing like having an organ of your own, think the Republicans, even if you are ashamed to own it after you get it.—Owensboro Messenger.

The Republican campaign committee is preparing to bleed the government clerks as usual.

The plan to be adopted is not to make application at their desks in the Departments, but to quietly notify them to call and settle at the headquarters of the committees. A circular covering this particular branch of the trade will be issued in a few days.

The National Convention of Prohibitionists met in Pittsburgh last week and put out a Presidential ticket. Ex-Gov. John P. St. John, of Kansas, was nominated for President and Wm. Daniel, of Maryland, for Vice-President. A very long and "dry" platform was adopted. A number of female delegates were present and took part in the work of the Convention.

The cholera report for Sunday from the French cities was as follows: Marseilles, 36 deaths; Toulon, 10 deaths; Arles, 12; Aix, 6; there is a panic in the latter place. The epidemic is abating at Toulon. One case occurred at Leghorn Sunday, which came from Marseilles.

There will be a good deal of strength for both Butler and St. John in Michigan and the State is now regarded as exceedingly doubtful from a Republican stand point. It looks like the vote of the State will be given for Cleveland and Hendricks.

Eugene Kelly—not John Kelly—of New York city has been chosen elector for the State at large, vice Wm. Purcell resigned. He is a wealthy banker and will add much strength to the Democratic ticket in the city of New York.

If the Prohibition Daniel should be elected it will be by a greater miracle than that which saved his namesake, the lion tamer.

Hon. James Speed, President Lincoln's Attorney General, has written a letter giving strong reasons why he will not support Blaine.

Gleason, a former Democrat of Cleveland, Ohio, has come out for Blaine. We mention this to give the disheartened Republicans one more morsel of encouragement.

The Indiana Prohibitionists have nominated R. S. D. Wiggins for Governor.

John Kelly, the Tammany chief, is 61 years old.

LIQUOR AND LEAD.

Mell Woosley Paints a Picnic Red and Shoots Bob Goodwin perhaps fatally.

There was a picnic at Bryant's store, one mile from Pool's mill, in the Bainbridge district last Saturday. In the afternoon Mell Woosley got on the outside of a quantity of hard-head liquor and started out to paint the woods, picnic included, a loaded revolver recklessly around in the crowd and shot off the weapon several times to the terror of those within reach of his bullets. Finally a young man named Bob Goodwin, a son of Mr. Grand Goodwin, a prominent citizen of the Courtland Springs neighborhood, went up to Woosley and endeavored to quiet him and tried to persuade him to give up his pistol. Woosley flew into a rage and undertook to shoot Goodwin. The latter grappled with him and Woosley shot three times in the struggle the last shot taking effect in Goodwin's side.

Three ribs were broken and the ball passed out near the spine. After being shot Goodwin howled a pistol and tried to shoot Woosley, but the weapon snapped three times.

Goodwin is in a very dangerous condition. His physicians are divided in their opinions as to whether or not he will recover. Goodwin is a brother-in-law of Mr. W. A. Pool, of McKee & Pool, this city. Woosley is about 40 years old and has a family. He made his escape and is still at large. The shooting occurred in Christian county, but Goodwin lives in Trigg, near the line.

Mr. Tom. W. Buckner late of this city, is one of the secretaries of the Henderson School and Hendricks club.

The young gentlemen of Longview will give a picnic and brandance at that place on Wednesday Aug. 6th. Invitations will be issued to ladies. Gentlemen will not be ticketed. The affair is in the hands of young gentlemen who will make a grand success of the undertaking.

The Republicans will hold a ratification meeting at the Court house next Saturday night and an attempt will be made to work up some enthusiasm for Blaine & Logan. The meeting will be addressed by Messrs. E. P. Campbell, John Feland, Jas. Brecht, J. W. Downer and others.

The advertisement of Maj. J. O. Ferrell's High school appears in another column. It needs no words of praise from us. There is not a school in Kentucky where pupils are better disciplined or more thoroughly taught. The next session will open Sept. 1st.

When Zeno Young was hurt Jan. 25, he had made his arrangements to come to this city on a visit and as was his usual custom had taken out an accident policy paying therefore fifty cents. Since he has been disabled he has drawn on this policy $30 each week and will continue to do so until he recovers. He was suffering very much with his broken jaw, which was much swollen last week and he will not be able to leave his room for several weeks yet. In addition to his own disabilities his wife and two children were seriously ill last week and his home was almost converted into a hospital. He has many sympathizing friends in his misfortunes.

"Down in Tennessee."

Mr. Editor:

It may be that the many who make Chattanooga only a thoroughfare to other places, know but very little about it as a city. Your correspondent must confess to her own ignorance in regard to the internal attractions, hitherto only having passed hurriedly through. About thirty-eight passenger trains leave here daily, while perhaps as many as forty freights pass in the same time. To a visitor it soon becomes a self-evident fact that Chattanooga is decidedly a manufacturing town, numbering over one hundred different manufacturing plants, for plainly visible from "Cannon Hill," a natural observatory of the city, may be seen the smoke stacks of blast furnaces, steam tanneries, fire brick works, nail factories, plow factories, boiler works and others too numerous to mention in detail, so will only particularize in regard to a few.

To one interested in such things an hour cannot be more pleasantly or profitably passed than in looking through the "Iron Boats and steel works." Here the process of manufacturing steel rails seems to the uninitiated wonderful.

The vast tannery of J. B. Hoyt & Co., of New York, is said to be the second largest in the world. Here you can commence with the primary steps of grinding the tan bark and follow it through all its mazy intricacies until it is ready for shipment to New York, where it receives the final impress of the hydraulic press.

The blast furnace next comes in order; to this we gain an entrance through the main stock building. Here are piled up immense quantities of lime-stone, coke and iron ore. These are rapidly transported in barrows to the top of the cupola, and cast into the seething, burning mass of flame below. The heating stoves are huge. The lever power secured of wonderful strength and capacity while the cylinders that forced the blast upward were large enough to have been forged by Vulcan. Everywhere the whirl of machinery surrounds you.

Yet our correspondent visited the furnace with several others—at night as we were anxious to see the iron turned off. Preparatory to this, at regular intervals the enders were thrown out, the furnace being at white heat, the electric flashes of sparks and cinders exceeded in brilliancy countless myriads of painted diamonds, and far surpassed in beauty and brilliancy the most magnificent display of fireworks. Working in this heated atmosphere most surely shortens life. Looking on and watching the heated tread mill step of those who panted with streaming faces, in the intense glare of heat and light, making trenches for the iron to be rolled into form, the thought came unbidden, "Is it right to establish a free trade, that would reduce the wages of a poor laborer like this who day after day, goes through the same process, exposed to the same dangers? It is said this vast furnace is never allowed to cool, not even the Sabbath day being excepted. One day alone would occasion a loss of thousands of dollars to the company.

It would take too much time and space to particularize in regard to the South Tredegar Iron Works, and many others of equal interest, so I will not go into further detail.

All visitors drive out to the National Cemetery, and the register shows that they have not been sectional, but liberally distributed from the different states. The magnificent gateway that encloses this city of the dead, is built of Alabama limestone, with an archway 37 feet in height, in which swings a massive iron gate. It is said this gateway by special contract cost $17,000. On the outside as you linger here the following entablature greets your eye:

National Military Cemetery, Chattanooga, A. D., 1863.

On the inside we read:

Here rest in peace 12,956 citizens who died for their country, in the years 1861-1865.

The drives through the grounds are beautiful and the whole well kept.

Your correspondent recalls pleasantly a delightful hour spent in the convalescent of this place, a branch of St. Cecilia, of Nashville, which is termed by the sisterhood here "their mother home." The mother Superior and sisters were in Nashville, so we found only sister Mary Joseph in charge, whose winning sweetness and chaste manners, so replete with dignity, and without, so unworshipfully, that we felt we had encountered an angel unawares. We are indebted to her for many courtesies and much information in regard to the convent. The Misses Quarles, so well and popularly known in Kentucky, and especially Christian county, belong to this sisterhood—cannot recall their names as sisters. Learning your correspondent was from their State, Sister Mary Joseph regretted their absence, feeling assured that although unknown to them, a meeting would have been to all a mutual pleasure.

A railroad is being rapidly constructed around Chattanooga called the belt road that will surround the city. While Col. A. P. Ball Ex-Superintendent of the A. G. S. R. R. has quite recently bought Look-out mountain paying $125,000 cash, he will begin in a few days to build a broad gauge R. R. to the top of Look-out, which he expects to complete in 90 days. This will render sight seeing on the mountain, not such an expensive pleasure, as at present a hack costs one $6 and $8 per day—while to this are added other expenses when the mountain is gained.

Your correspondent will perhaps go up to-morrow and see the sights and may there find something of interest for the readers of the South Kentuckian.

OLIVE BRANCH, Chattanooga, Tenn., July 22, '81.

Mr. R. W. Norwood has assumed his duties as book-keeper of the Planters Bank and Mr. Ross Rogers is temporarily acting as express agent in his stead. Mr. J. E. "I have both used and sold Pringle's Ash Bitters for a number of years, and think it the best bitter made for Biliousness, Liver Complaints and for toning up the system." So writes W. H. Cole Druggist, of Hopkinsville. A single trial of this remedy will convince any person of the truth of the above.

Metcalfe, Graham & Co. keep constantly on hand a full line of Buggies. Call and see them.

West & Means keep a good supply of Grate, Smith and Nut coal. Their coal is said to be the best in the market for thrasher engines. Yard near Jno. Orr & Co's Planing Mill.

The Hoosier Runner Press Drill.

It having been demonstrated by carefully conducted practical tests that the probabilities of the germination of seed wheat are greatly increased by packing the earth on the seed at time of drilling, and that in consequence, the quantity of seed can safely be reduced to 1/2 or 1/3 of the amount usually sown, with full assurance that the yield will also be greatly increased, we turned our most careful attention to the construction of a drill with Press Wheels for packing the earth on the seed, in order to place within the reach of farmers these very desirable results and enable them to largely increase the profits of wheat raising.

The result of our labor is the Hoosier Runner Press Drill, which we take pleasure in hereby presenting to the notice of farmers, in the full belief that it is eminently worthy of their most careful consideration.

The Runners of this Drill

ARE

Permitted to Adapt Themselves to Unevenness of the Ground

Everything that is necessary and that pertaining to a first-class bar can be found at Pike's old stand on Bridge street, this city. There are about 4000 worth of whiskies, wines, Brandy &c., together with a large lot of cigars. In addition to the above, I have quite a large supply of bedsteads, bed room furniture, wardrobes, tables, carpets &c., for sale and would like to close out entire stock at wholesale.
